

What The CxO Needs To Know About Information Technology Joe, a former CIO, is helping out his neighbor who runs a limousine service by chauffeuring Bill, CEO of Resolute Enterprises, a medium-sized company that has been experiencing difficulties with its IT. During their regular limousine trips, Bill and Joe discuss the problems and potential ways to improve the use of IT in his company. Many topics arise in their discussions, from IT governance to mobile technologies, all explained in a non-technical, conversational mode, giving readers, regardless of their technical ability, a solid understanding of how to use technology more effectively in their organization. Through an easy, readable dialogue the reader is engaged in learning basic technology management principles. What Drives Your IT? The IT Chauffeur will help CEOs, C-suite, board members, vice presidents, directors and managers get value from their IT investments. The story focuses on a medium-sized company, but the discussion is relevant to executives in organizations of any size.
