

Rabbi Herzog, former Chief Rabbi of Israel, was regarded as one of the foremost authorities on the Talmud as well as a distinguished scholar of jurisprudence. In this landmark work, Rabbi Herzog provides a fascinating portrait of the Jewish legal system. In addition to presenting a thorough introduction to the history of Jewish law, Rabbi Herzog discusses, in great detail, two distinct parts of Jewish law: the laws of property and the laws of obligations. Drawing on his extensive knowledge of the Roman and English legal systems, he compares these systems with the Judaic legal system. This is a comprehensive work for all who cherish Jewish law and its place in the fabric of Jewish life. index notes appendix glossary
